DETAILED ACTION

Status of Claims

1. Claims 1-4 are pending.
Claims 1-4 are rejected.

Priority

2. Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Information Disclosure Statement

3. The information disclosure statement (IDS) submitted on October 21, 2004 has been considered by the examiner.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

5. Claims 3 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Noriko (JP 08238098) or Sharma et al. (US 5,800,897).

Noriko teaches a fragrant mixture comprising anis alcohol (see abstract).

Sharma et al. teach an air freshener comprising anisyl alcohol (see entire disclosure, in particular column 5, lines 65-68 and column 6, line 68 to column 7, line 2).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

7. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

8. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

9. Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Arrigo et al. (US 3,663,626) in view of Amend (US 2,046,011).

Arrigo et al. teach a continuous process for the hydrogenation of anisaldehyde to anisyl alcohol which comprises effecting in a continuous process the hydrogenation a temperature of from about 50° to about 200°C with a catalyst composite of platinum and an alkali metal component (see entire disclosure, in particular column 1, lines 39-53).

Arrigo et al. differ from the instant claims in that Arrigo et al. do not teach the use of a Raney nickel catalyst.

Art Unit: 1621

Amend teaches Raney nickel catalysts are suitable substitutes for platinum catalysts in the catalytic hydrogenation of aromatic aldehydes, such as anisaldehyde (see entire disclosure, in particular column 1, lines 10-13 and column 1, line 54 to column 2, line). One having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made would have found it obvious to substitute the Raney nickel catalyst of Amend for the platinum catalyst of Arrigo et al., since Amend teach that both are suitable for hydrogenation of aromatic aldehydes.

Arrigo et al. further differ from the instant invention in that Arrigo et al. do not disclose a utility for the aromatic alcohols produced.

Amend teaches that the ring substituted alcohols of his invention are useful in the manufacture of perfumes, cosmetics and drugs (see column 3, lines 36-38).

One having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made would have found it obvious to utilize the anis alcohol of Arrigo et al. in a perfume, cosmetic or drug, since Amend teaches that the aromatic alcohols produced according to his invention, which includes anis alcohol are useful for making perfumes, cosmetics and drugs.

The selection of a known material based on its suitability for its intended use supported a prima facie case of obviousness determination. See Sinclair & Carroll Co. v. Interchemical Corp., 325 U.S. 327, 65 USPQ 297 (1945). Thus, the selection of the instant Raney nickel catalyst and use of anis alcohol for making perfumes, cosmetics and drugs is prima facie obvious.
